The image shows a handwritten manuscript page with a technical drawing of a building floor plan. The drawing is a rectangular plan with various rooms and corridors, labeled with handwritten text. The drawing is a perspective view of a floor plan, showing the layout of a building. It includes several rooms of varying sizes, some with internal divisions, and a central corridor or passage. The drawing is drawn in black ink on aged paper. The text surrounding the drawing is written in a cursive script, likely from the 18th or 19th century. The text is written in two columns on either side of the drawing. The drawing itself is a detailed architectural plan, showing the walls, doors, and internal structures of a building. It is oriented vertically on the page. The overall appearance is that of a historical document, possibly a set of architectural plans or a record of a building's layout.
